Time Magazine cited Chris as one of the “movers and shakers who are building the entertainment industry” and Billboard Magazine repeatedly cites him as the country’s most influential entertainment lawyer. He is the founder/owner of Taylor Klein Oballa LLP, a leading entertainment and new media law firm.

His clients include Grammy Award winners Nelly Furtado and Drake, world-class songwriters Cirkut and Gordon Lightfoot as well as the new crop of Canadian recording stars on the rise such as Alessia Cara, DVBBs, Saint Asonia and Belly.

He is also the founder of Last Gang Entertainment, an internationally successful music company credited with discovering Metric, Death From Above 1979 and Crystal Castles among others. The company manages the careers of Lights and the Arkells.

He first attended SXSW in 1992 with his own showcasing band and has been back almost every year since.
